

About Topical Treatments

- What are the risks for using a topical medication?
- How long will I need to use a topical treatment?
- Will the topical medication be covered by insurance and, what, if any, out-of-pocket expenses will there be?

Topical treatments for skin cancer use creams or gels to apply drugs directly to the skin. These treatments are usually used as a second-line option after surgical excision or cryotherapy.

